Emily Dominguez is an associate attorney at Ansbacher Law, where she represents condominium and homeowners' association across Florida. Her practice areas include general representation, covenant enforcement, restrictions, collections, and assisting association boards and management with their legal needs.

In addition to her work with community associations, Emily is the firm's go-to insurance expert. She has also conducted numerous continuing education courses, particularly focusing on Structural Integrity Reserve Studies (SIRS) and Milestone Inspections, helping boards and manages navigate important legislative changes. A proud Cuban-American born and raised in Miami, Florida, Emily is bilingual in English and Spanish, which allows her to connect with and better serve Florida's diverse communities. She earned her Associate of Arts from Miami-Dade College, her Bachelors of Science from the University of Florida, and her Juris Doctorate from Florida International University College of Law, graduating magna cum laude and finishing third in her class.

While at FIU Law, Emily served as Executive Business Editor of the FIU Law Review, President of the National Conference of Law Reviews, and work for legal writing courses, mentoring students in appellate writing and oral advocacy. She also received two prestigious honors; the CALI Excellence for the Future Award in Products Liability and the CALI Excellence for the Future Award in Pre-Trial Practice in 2017. When she's not advocating for her clients, Emily enjoys boating in the Florida Keys, cooking, and soaking up the sunshine with her husband, Jeff, and their dog, Mahi.
